

SENATOR SYAS: Well, this is amazing. Senator Carpenter stands up here and says it doesn't make any difference. Well, if it doesn't make any difference on 10 years, then it doesn't make any difference on 5. Well, then what's he talking about. I'll take the 10 year, anything's better than the 5 years. I, I'll take the 10 year limitation but I think Senator Carpenter was inconsistent. Of course, this is nothing unusual. Well, you get personal with everybody on this floor, you're not going to get personal with me buddy.

SPEAKER: We have before us the Lewis amendment.

SENATOR SYAS: You're not that big, you know. Well, anyhow, get back to the bill. Ten years is all right. As I say again in repetition, if his argument on 10 years is so that they can take any amount of years they want to, you can do the same thing on 5 if he's griped.

SPEAKER: We have before us the Lewis amendment. Is there any further discussion of the Lewis amendment. Do you understand it, do you need it read again? Senator Carpenter?

SENATOR CARPENTER: I just wanted to answer Senator Syas' question. All I'm saying, if the school district in Omaha or anywhere else enter into a lease for ten million dollars to build a building at the time they made the lease, let's say they expected they could pay it, but things raised where they couldn't pay it so they default on the payments

(End of Belt #12)